EMPLOYMENT

- 2022 – Present Founding Editor – The DateKeepers
Co-founded an international media platform committed to ending the “It bleeds, it leads” paradigm, elevating unrecognized artists and innovators, and creating opportunities for journalist and nonfiction writers. Duties include writing profiles, op-eds, commentaries, essays, and articles; soliciting and editing content from contributing writers; managing web content; and implementing outreach and social media marketing campaigns.
- 2015 – Present Freelance Editor – Self-Employed
Offering developmental and structural editing, copyediting, and proofreading for book-length manuscripts in multiple genres, academic articles, resumes, CVs, application essays, and other professional documents.
- 2021 – 2022 Writer & Copyeditor – *ABILITY Magazine
Interviewed persons with disabilities, advocates, and allies, editing interview transcripts, drafted profiles, copyedited content, and conducted other tasks (fact-checking, communications, etc.) as needed.
- 2016 – 2021 Special Programs Staffer – Spring International Language Center
Served as a cultural ambassador and chaperone for students and scholars with diverse degrees of English proficiency from over forty countries.
- 2018 – 2019 Instructor – Osher Lifelong Learning Institute
Developed two stand-alone lectures on the Ramayana and the Thousand and One Nights, respectively, and delivered these to small groups of senior citizens.
- 2015 – 2019 Graduate Student Instructor – University of Arkansas, Fayetteville

Department of English

Taught fifteen undergraduate sections across four years as the instructor of record. Created original reading lists, lectures, exercises, and activities; conferenced with and mentored students; graded all assignments and papers.

2017 – 2018

Research Instructor's Assistant – Mullin's Library, University of Arkansas, Fayetteville

Assisted the research librarian for the English and Communications Departments at the U of A with special projects, data collection, analysis of library holdings, and development of supplemental instruction materials.

2015 – 2017

Writing Tutor – CLASS+ Writing Support, University of Arkansas

Helped students brainstorm, outline, draft, revise, and proofread a variety of documents, face-to-face and online. Gained experience with ESL and international students. Trained to tutor clients who are blind/visually impaired.

2013 – 2015

Writing Tutor – University Writing Center, UNC Wilmington

Helped students brainstorm, outline, draft, revise, and proofread academic papers, face-to-face and online. Mentored new tutors and offered pedagogical feedback.

2013 – 2015

Poetry Editor – Atlantis Magazine, UNCW Student Media Center

Reviewed all poetry submissions, selected poems for publication, solicited revisions, and offered feedback to poets. Organized events and fundraisers. Trained a replacement poetry editor before departure.

TEACHING EXPERIENCE

Creative Nonfiction Essay Writing (1 Section) – University of Arkansas, Fayetteville Department of English

Introduction to writing creative nonfiction: students read contemporary essays and analyzed them from a craft perspective, completed regular journaling assignments and writing exercises, and learned the workshop format for exchanging feedback. Major writing assignments: memoir, braided essay, collage/hermit crab essay, new journalism.

2018

World Literature II: 1650 – Present (2 Sections) – University of Arkansas, Fayetteville Department of English

Students read selected poetry, fiction, nonfiction, and drama with an emphasis on the literary legacies of racial ideology, European imperialism, and the Transatlantic Slave Trade. Lectures synthesized historical, cultural, and literary perspectives. Students led discussions, maintained reading journals, and performed role-playing exercises to deepen their understanding of the texts. Major writing assignments: translation comparison/adaptation comparison, research paper/closing arguments.

2017 – 2018

World Literature I: Antiquity – 1650 (3 Sections) – University of Arkansas, Fayetteville Department of English

Students read selected poetry, fiction, nonfiction, and drama with an emphasis on literary articulations of sex, gender, and heroic archetypes in long-form narratives. Original lectures introduced dominant and marginal perspectives to enrich student-led discussions. Students engaged with texts through a variety of interactive exercises. Major writing assignments: translation comparison/adaptation comparison, research paper/closing arguments.

2016 – 2017

Composition II (3 Sections) – University of Arkansas, Fayetteville Department of English

Introduction to meta-writing and ethnographic research: students read peer-reviewed articles, learned about rhetorical theory and procedures for ethnographic research, analyzed popular and academic texts, conducted interviews and field research, and presented their findings in oral and written formats. Major writing assignments: literacy critique, literacy study, rhetorical analysis, and analysis of a discourse community.

Composition I (1 Section) – University of Arkansas, Fayetteville Department of English

Introduction to academic writing, research, and critical thinking: students read articles from newspapers, magazines, and blogs, analyzed them rhetorically, and presented their findings in oral and written formats. Exercises familiarized them with MLA guidelines and basic grammatical principles as well as stylistic, organizational, and persuasive strategies. Major writing assignments: summary, synthesis, rhetorical analysis, and argumentative synthesis.
